

2012 Selection Committee Member

Monique A. Arnold, BA, CMA,
President
Financial Management Institute of Canada

Monique A. Arnold is the current President of the Financial Management Institute (FMI) of Canada, a leading source of professional development and training for public sector and other finance professionals. A CMA since 1988, Monique gained insight into private sector accounting with various large firms before applying her knowledge of financial management to various departments in the Federal Government.

Her experience working as a public financial management specialist, including the staffing of public financial officers and executives, and as the President of J. & M. Arnold and Associates, Ltd., has given her strong knowledge of applicable development and learning needs. Her work in international public financial management for Ethiopia, Ghana and Senegal has allowed her to work with practitioners from many other countries and provide a context for viewing the Canadian position within the profession.

Her work within the FMI executive over the past ten years has included the production of several major events. As President of FMI, she works to extend the quality, quantity and the reach of the organization's programs.

Monique is a proud native of Ottawa and continues to live there with her husband and her three children.
